
What read() appears to do

1. A process calls read()
2. The kernel copies a number of bytes from a file into an array in the calling process.